REPUBLICANS ACTUALLY REDUCE EXPENSES

A comparison of the financial status of the government at the close of the fiscal year June 30, with former years furnishes a complete substantiation of the statement. It left the industrial working-class in a condition of abject poverty. It wiped out all the high-minded expenditures and to mark the increase of efficiency in standards of living and work keeping the government's accounts Congressman Martin G. Mead of Illinois chairman of the house appropriations committee has submitted to the legislature the actual figures of what the republicans have accomplished. The total appropriations for 1922 were $4,000,000 and those for 1923, $2,400,000 showing a reduction of $1,600,000. These figures are impressive enough, but the fact is that shortly after the beginning of the fiscal year 1922 the treasury estimated that the expenditures for that year would reach $4,543,000,000. At the end of the year it was found that they had actually amounted to but $4,725,000,000, a deficit and actual saving of $250,000 due solely to the budget economy and the dismemberment of President Harding and the republican congress to make every possible saving in the expenditures money. By the application of the same methods of retrenchment it is expected that next year's appropriations for 1923, as shown as they are will be left with unexpended balances at the end of the year.

The most marked reduction in the appropriations this year under those of last is in the line of national defense. For 1922 the military and naval appropriations totaled $76,000,000 while for 1923 they are $55,000,000, a saving of $21,000,000. Much of that economy is directly due to the results of the Washington conference called by President Harding to reduce naval armaments.

In spite of the most rigid economy revealed by those figures, big reductions in the national debt have been achieved. At the beginning of the fiscal year 1922 the debt stood at $23,977,000,000 and at the end of the year it had dropped to $22,963,000,000.

The object aimed at by the republicans in thus cutting expenditures to the bone was the reduction in the tax burden on the people. As soon as the economies were put into effect they were translated into reduced taxes, and during the calendar year 1921 eighty million is estimated to have been saved the taxpayers. In the present calendar year the total saving to the people in taxes will reach $850,000,000. Further savings of the same sort will follow in succeeding years.

TOUCHING WAGE LEVELS

European wage levels have all ways been much lower than those in the United States. That is why hundreds of thousands of Europeans have emigrated to this country. They not only have been able to obtain far better wages than they were paid in their home countries but they could buy more for a dollar in this country than they could for its equivalent in Europe.

American wages have been maintained at their high level for the last 50 years solely because of an American protective tariff system which prevented the importation of goods made abroad by cheaply paid labor. Quite naturally, had this country permitted such goods to come in to unrestrained competition with American goods there would have been but two possible results, either our manufacturers would have been put out of business altogether or they would have been compelled to reduce their wage levels to the level of European wages.

In pre-war days German labor was probably the best paid of any labor in Europe, and yet in 1914 before the outbreak of the war, when German industry was at the height of its prosperity and production, the average German wage was 60 per cent of the average wages in America. The difference between the wage averages of other European countries and this country was even greater.
